The professional practice of medicine is a calling. By accepting and pursuing this calling, we gain not only privileges but also duties, whether we are faculty, staff, residents, or students.

As a member of The University of Texas Medical School at Houston community, I promise to uphold the highest standards of the medical profession.

These include commitments to:
• COMPASSION for human suffering;
• personal and professional INTEGRITY;
• RESPECT for others; and
• excellent communication and COLLABORATION.
